

SAVING Cinderella

A full length musical by Christine Duncan

SYNOPSIS

Cinderella must abandon old insecurities and rise up to save herself and her country in this spirited sequel to the famous fable.

Becoming a princess is far from a dream come true as Cinderella's innocent eyes are opened to the cruel intrigues of courtly life.

The Prince stands aloof – convinced he's already saved her – and pressure mounts as the Princess cannot even command her own servants. Everyone thinks they know what the help should look like, but they couldn't be further from lifting up Cinderella.

Feeble and faint, she falls from grace and returns to the ashes. When Cinderella abandons the crown, the vacuum is soon filled by a new nemesis – an avaricious advisor. Will the Prince be convinced to sign away power, or will Cinderella stop the deadly chain of events? Bolstered by friends, in the end she must choose – will she listen to the lies or will she hear the truth? Will she finally see “It's Time To Get Up?”

She'd better act quickly before time runs out!

KINGDOMS AND KINDLY WORDS JUST AREN'T ENOUGH WHEN YOU'RE SAVING CINDERELLA.

BIO

Thanks to her father's service in the Air Force, Christine spent most of her childhood in Europe where she fell in love with fairytales and musical theater. After an administrative career within the Mental Health field, experience as an anti-poverty volunteer, and a series of personal tragedies, Christine has poured herself into writing and producing Saving Cinderella: encouraging everyone to embrace relationships as a primary strategy in the fight against poverty. At the start of 2021, the show is in table reads where artists speak and sing through the work as part of its journey to the stage.
